

The E-9 ploughing through the ice floes of the Baltic Sea.

The E-9, encased in ice, returning to her home base after her dash into the Baltic.

Lieutenant Horton, and some of his crew on the E-9

The submarine in a new role—that of an ice bucker. Lieutenant Horton and his crew of British tars in the E-9 ran a combined ice and mine blockade in the Baltic to help bottle up Germany's commerce.

Exclusive photos from International Film Service

The E-9, partly submerged, pushing through the ice. This photograph was taken from the periscope, looking toward the bow.